The World Coalition Against the Death Penalty, composed of more than 150 NGOs, bar associations, local authorities and trade unions, was founded in Rome on 13 May 2002. Its foundation is the result of the commitment made by the signatories of the Final Declaration of the First World Congress against the Death Penalty, organised by the French association ECPM (Ensemble contre la peine de mort) in June 2001 in Strasbourg. The World Coalition aims to strengthen the international dimension of the fight against the death penalty. Its ultimate objective is to achieve the universal abolition of the death penalty. To this end, it supports the work of its member organisations and coordinates international advocacy for abolition. The Coalition also designated 10 October as the World Day against the Death Penalty. It is a partner of the World Congress against the Death Penalty, which takes place every three years.

With the support of the members of the Core Group: informal network bringing together 12 diplomatic services (Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Benin, France, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Norway, Rwanda, Spain and Switzerland) to mobilise political actors.

GOALS

Encourage the involvement in the international anti-death penalty movement: private sector, sports, etc.
Put in place a global strategy to move the last retentionist countries towards abolition.
Accompany Africa towards abolition could Africa be the next abolitionist continent?
Counter populist movements, make progress in raising awareness about abolition and make younger generations actors of change.
Break the isolation of civil society, which works on a daily basis to abolish death in retentionist or moratorium countries by promoting networking.
Raise awareness among the Belgian population and teach young people, from Belgium and beyond, about abolition of the death penalty.

BENEFICIARIES

Abolitionist civil society, coalitions of actors against the death penalty and their member organisations working for fundamental rights.
The 150 members of the World Coalition Against the Death Penalty.
National Human Rights Institutions (NHRIs).
Professional parliamentary, legal and academic networks against the death penalty.
The Member States of the Core Group.
Teachers, students and pupils.
Citizens.
The media.

WHY BRUSSELS?

To mobilise as many people as possible: Brussels’ central position will allow a strong mobilisation (minimum of 1,500 people / day) and will make it possible to optimise networking in terms of quantity and diversity (NGOs, lawyers, parliamentarians, researchers, etc.).
Because of its important political representation: the Belgian capital has numerous political representatives. It is therefore attractive and provides an opportunity for high-level advocacy.
Brussels is the capital of Europe: it therefore possesses all the assets to be positioned as the spearhead of the abolitionist movement.

- Roundtable: Foreigners sentenced to death in the fight against terrorism
  1 MARCH 2019 – 11:30 AM TO 1:30 PM – EGMONT PALACE, EUROPE ROOM
There is little information about foreigners sentenced to death on terrorism charges. In this context, how to engage countries on the situation of their nationals facing a death sentence or execution overseas?

- Workshop: New strategies for abolition
  1 MARCH 2019 – 11:30 AM TO 1:30 PM – EGMONT PALACE, ARENBERG ROOM
This interactive workshop will propose new strategies, taking into account the new trends and risks affecting the abolitionist movement.

- Training: Advocating for abolition with community and religious leaders
  1 MARCH 2019 – 11:30 AM TO 1:30 PM – EGMONT PALACE, ORANGE ROOM
What arguments should be used to mobilise community and religious leaders in support of abolition? How should this dialogue be used when advocating for abolition?

EVENTS

LINDY LOU, JURY N°2 by Florent Vassault
MONDAY, 25 FEBRUARY – 7:30 PM – CINÉMA GALLERIES
In partnership with Ciné ONU - UNRIC / English with French subtitles
Over 20 years ago, Lindy Lou was called up to serve on a jury. Since then, she has lived with unbearable guilt. She then began a journey to compare her experience with that of the 11 other jurors with whom she had sentenced a man to death.
The screening will be followed by a debate with Florent Vassault, director.

SUZY & FRANK – Inti Théâtre – from and starring Didier Poitex Director : Olivier Lenel
TUESDAY, 26 FEBRUARY – 8:00 PM – THÉÂTRE LES TANNEURS
French with English avertities
Suzy lives in Paris and Frank lives on death row in Texas. In 1996, by chance, they started a correspondence. Little by little, they meet and soon get married. 20 years later, they still love each other but still do not live together. The performance will be followed by a discussion with the artist and Sandrine Ageorges-Skinner.

NETWORKING EVENING WEDNESDAY, 27 FEBRUARY – 7 PM – EGMONT PALACE
An exceptional evening in the prestigious Hall of Mirrors at the Palais d’Egmont to meet and discuss around original artistic and cultural events.

EVENING OF TESTIMONIES THURSDAY, 28 FEBRUARY – 8:00 PM – ROOM M IN BOZAR
Getting out of political advocacy to find a sensitive connection with the cause of abolition is the first reason for this traditional meeting. Let yourself be carried away by the stories of our guests which give way to emotion.

THE WORLD MARCH FOR ABOLITION FRIDAY, 1 MARCH – 5:30 PM MEET AT MONT DES ARTS
To conclude the Congress with a moment of militant communion, join us at this illuminated March that will swarm through the streets of Brussels to demand abolition together now!

EXHIBITIONS

THE GREAT WITNESSES OF THE ABOLITION – Christophe Meireis
25 FEBRUARY TO 1 MARCH – ESPACE MENONIN – EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT

WHO DESERVES TO DIE ?
25 FEBRUARY TO 1 MARCH, 2019 – EGMONT PALACE / AS OF 28 FEBRUARY – BOZAR
This photo exhibition of Spanish photojournalist Sofia Mora is an in-depth, ongoing research project developed over the past ten years on the application of the death penalty in the world today.
Among Our Witnesses

Arthur Judah Angel, Ex-convicted to death, Nigeria

Arthur Judah Angel, who was sentenced to death in Nigeria for murder in 1986 at the age of 21, has always denied that he had committed the crimes for which he was accused. He had to face a cancelled execution date at the last minute and witnessed 58 executions organised on the same day. He was finally released in 2000 after 16 years in prison, almost 10 of which were on death row.

Sabine Atlaoui, Spouse of the death row prisoner Serge Atlaoui – France

Sabine Atlaoui is the wife of Serge Atlaoui. This French citizen was arrested in Indonesia in 2005 in an acrylic factory that turned out to be a cover in an ecstasy production case. Sentenced to the death penalty on appeal in 2007, despite his protests of innocence, Serge is still on Indonesian death row. Sabine is fighting to save her husband and is involved in the universal struggle for the abolition of the death penalty.

Antoinette Chahine, Ex-convicted to death, member of the French National Order of Merit – Lebanon

Antoinette was arrested in 1994 and sentenced to death in 1997 for the murder of a priest. The real reason for her imprisonment proved to be the fact that her brother belonged to a Christian militia which was banned in Lebanon. Antoinette was tortured in prison. She was finally released in 1999 following international campaigns.

Geneviève Donadini, Sitting juror at the Ranucci trial – France

In 1976 the trial of Christian Ranucci for the murder of a little girl was held in the court of Aix-en-Provence in France. At the end of the trial, the accused was sentenced to death and then guillotined on July 28th of the same year. Among the 12 jurors was Geneviève Donadini, a young mother at the time of the events. 40 years later, Mrs. Donadini wrote «Le procès Ranucci. Témoignage d’un juré d’assise» (The Ranucci trial. Testimony of a sitting juror), published by Harmattan.

Ahmed Haou, Ex-convicted to death – Morocco

A former death row prisoner in Morocco, he was sentenced on the 30th of July, 1984 for an offence against national security and after having protested against Hassan’s regime at a peaceful demonstration. Due to the pressure exerted by international organisations, he was finally pardoned in 1998.

Ndume Olatushani, Ex-convicted to death, United States

Ndume spent 28 years in prison, including 20 on death row in the United States, for a crime he did not commit. Saved by the discovery of drawing and painting, supported throughout his detention by his relatives and abolitionist organisations, he continues today to be strongly devoted alongside young people against the death penalty.

Pete Ouko, Ex-convicted to death, Kenya

Sentenced to death for murder in 2001 at the age of 31, Pete Ouko, then father of two young children, has always claimed his innocence. Detained for nearly 18 years in a cell with 13 other prisoners, he now testifies of the difficulty of surviving while waiting for his execution. He was pardoned and released on the 26th of October 2007 and is now a graduate in law at the University of London. He is involved in defending the rights of prisoners in Africa through the Youth Safety Awareness Initiative, of which he is the founder and director.

ECPM Presentation

ECPM (Together Against the Death Penalty) is an organisation working for a particular cause: universal abolition of the death penalty under all circumstances.

Advocacy with the Highest Authorities

ECPM is the first NGO devoted to the struggle against the death penalty to have obtained ECOSOC status which guarantees it a presence and the possibility of advocating at the very heart of the UN system.

ECPM created the World Coalition Against the Death Penalty in 2002 which today has more than 150 members – NGOs, bar associations, local bodies, unions – from across the world.

ECPM leads advocacy and public mobilisation campaigns with political decision-makers (European Union, African Commission on Human and Peoples’ Rights, governments, etc.)

Uniting Abolitionists from Across the World

ECPM is the founder and organiser of the World Congresses Against the Death Penalty. These events bring together more than 1,300 people representing the world abolitionist movement: Ministers, parliamentarians, diplomats, activists, civil society organisations, researchers and journalists come together every three years to strengthen their ties and draw up strategies for the future.

Education and Awareness of Abolition

ECPM works in schools to encourage young people to support the issue through drawing competitions, introductions to journalism and free class visits – with the participation of specialists, individuals previously sentenced to death or the families of prisoners sentenced to death. More than 10,000 middle and high school pupils have been involved since October 2009.

ECPM raises awareness among the public concerning minorities and vulnerable groups by participating in the Gay Pride, the Fête de la Humanité, Cities for Life, the World Day Against the Death Penalty, World Human Rights Day, etc.

Strengthening the Capacities of Local Actors and Taking Action with Them

ECPM fights against the isolation of activists wherever the death penalty remains by supporting the formation of national and regional coalitions against the death penalty (Morocco, Tunisia, Central Africa, Asia, etc.), as well as the creation of networks of abolitionist parliamentarians and lawyers.

ECPM encourages efficiency among its local partners by organising training sessions and advocating at all political levels for their work to be supported.

Proximity to Prisoners Sentenced to Death

ECPM carries out and publishes judicial investigations into death row (in Morocco, Tunisia and the United States). Our publication “Investigation into Death Row in the DRC” received the French Republic’s top Human Rights Prize.

ECPM supports the victims of the death penalty, prisoners and their families such as Serge Atlaoui and Hank Skinner.

ECPM supports correspondence with prisoners sentenced to death.
144 countries and territories have abolished the death penalty either in law or in practice in 2018. Abolition is part of a universal trend. And yet, some regions still strongly resist the advance of abolitionist thinking and continue to apply the death penalty in a significant way. This is the case in Asia, the Arab world and the United States, the only democracy among the ten leading countries in terms of the number of annual executions. The world number of executions in 2017 is estimated at 993. This figure is well below the reality, given that China has made data on executions, estimated to be several thousands per year, a State secret (source: Amnesty International, 2017). The African continent is moving towards abolition: 4/5 of the 55 African countries are abolitionist in law or under moratorium.

The 31 countries in the world with a moratorium represent important levers to be activated, as their move into the abolitionist camp could create a snowball effect.

This progress also hides other realities: that of the citizens of the 54 countries which still use the death penalty and which represent approximately 60% of the world population living under the yoke of a justice system which kills. That of the more than 20,000 prisoners sentenced to death who await execution in conditions of detention which are often well below what is required by international standards.

In countries which have abolished the death penalty in law, pro-death penalty movements regularly challenge abolition. The risk of a resumption of executions in countries which have not executed anyone for several years is ever present.

Furthermore, in most of the countries where support for the death penalty is still high, capital punishment is passed (after unfair trials, often based on confessions obtained under torture) in a discriminatory manner for non-violent crimes which do not meet the criteria of "the most serious crimes" such as financial crimes, witchcraft, apostasy, drug-related offences and sexual relations between consenting adults – against juveniles at the time of the events.

Numerous State actors, as well as the European Union, agree on the idea that the death penalty constitutes a manifest violation of the right to life as set down in Article 3 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. In that respect, they share the conviction that the fight for its abolition is a struggle for the most fundamental human right and respect for human dignity, particularly that of the absolute prohibition of torture and cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment; its dissuasive effect has never been proven.
